Read the given passage and answer the questions.

An essential function of newspapers is to bring us news of the world. Without newspapers we would be like a frog in a well who knows nothing of the outside world. In democratic country like India, they are an important means of forming public opinion. The newspaper comments on current affairs and also criticizes or appreciates the conduct of the government. They are also an important means of advertisement and they help trade and commerce. Newspapers are necessary for the functioning of the democracy. But newspapers have some drawbacks too. They serve as means of propagation of various political parties. After that they publish wrong advertisements which cheat the people and corrupt the public taste. However they are guardians of liberty, civic and human rights in the civilized world. The common masses can express their statement, afflication and criticism of
