Read the following passage:

Sarah loved spending time outdoors, especially in her grandmother's garden. Every summer, she would visit her grandmother's house and help tend to the beautiful flowers and vegetables. Sarah admired her grandmother's green thumb and hoped to learn her gardening skills one day.

One sunny afternoon, sarah noticed something peculiar in the garden. A small caterpillar was munching on the leaves of her grandmother's prized rose bush. Concerned, Sarah gently picked up the caterpillar and placed it on a nearby plant. She knew that caterpillars could cause damage to plants, but she also understood that they would eventually transform into beautiful butterflies.

Determined to protect her grandmother's garden, Sarah decided to research natural ways to deter caterpillars without harming them. She discovered that planting certain herbs and flowers could repel caterpillars while attracting beneficial insects like ladybugs and lacewings. Excited about her findings, Sarah eagerly shared her knowledge with her grandmother and together they planted a variety of plants to create a balanced ecosystem in the garden.
